Tenure Track Assistant Professor
Department of Statistics
Oklahoma State University
Beginning August 2018

The Department of Statistics at Oklahoma State University (OSU) invites applications for a tenure track position. The rank is Assistant Professor but in exceptional cases, an Associate Professor with or without tenure may be possible depending on experience, current rank and qualifications. Requirements for this position include a Ph.D. in statistics or biostatistics, excellent teaching skills and outstanding research or evident potential. Grant success or potential for, is highly regarded. Current need areas of the Department include statistical theory, modeling and innovative applications. All strong candidates, however, are urged to apply. A successful faculty candidate should be willing to teach from a multicultural perspective and should be willing to mentor ethnically and racially underrepresented students.

The Statistics Department has a long tradition of applications oriented programs and maintains continuing ties with the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources Experiment Station that can afford our graduate students opportunities for practical training and offer faculty consulting outlet.

OSU is Oklahoma’s land grant university and houses the only statistics department in the state of Oklahoma. The University is experiencing major development, thanks to recent generous donations and endowments by many of its alums and benefactors. The University enrolls about 23,000 students, over 5,000 of them are pursuing graduate or professional degrees.

Stillwater, a great place to live and raise a family (one of the top 100 small cities in the 2010 Forbes ranking), is located in north-central Oklahoma about 60 miles from both Oklahoma City and Tulsa. The town enjoys four season weather, affordable housing, good schools and health care, and reasonable cost of living.
